Midterm Exam

The Midterm is composed of two equally-weighted parts:

1. Short-Answer Identification: The IDs are terms, concepts, and events that will be drawn from a long list distributed a week before the exam. You should define each ID and discuss its significance to the course. Answers should be 1-2 paragraphs in length. You will write on five IDs that you select from a list of ten.
2. Essay Question: The essay question will incorporate material from readings and lectures up to the day of the exam.

Final Exam

The final is composed of three equally-weighted parts:

1. Short-Answer Identification: You will identify and discuss the significance of eight IDs that you select from a list of 16. The IDs will be terms, concepts, or events drawn from the second half of the course.
2. Essay question from the second half of the course: This essay question will cover material from the midterm to the end of the course. Draw upon the readings and lectures to reach conclusions, and to use historical examples to illustrate your points.
3. Essay question from the entire course: This essay question will incorporate material from the entire course. Expect to draw upon the readings and lectures to reach conclusions, and to use historical examples to illustrate your points.

Grade Dispute Procedure: If you feel an error was made in the grading of your exam(s), you must follow this procedure:

1. Prepare a written statement detailing the reasons why you think you received the wrong grade.
2. Submit the statement to your teaching assistant and schedule an appointment to discuss your exam.
3. If you are still unsatisfied with your grade after meeting with your teaching assistant, bring your exam to the professor.
4. The professor will read your exam and give it a new grade--which might be higher or lower than your original grade. This is the grade you will receive on the exam.
